

COLLIBRA ON-THE-GO

Data governance from your mobile device

Data governance at your fingertips so you can get the most from your data anytime, anywhere

Find

Collibra On-the-Go provides access to the information you need, anytime, anywhere. You'll gain complete visibility into all of your data governance business terms, technical metadata, policies, communities, and agreements right from your mobile device. With Collibra On-the-Go, you can know which reports are watermarked and understand the authoritative sources for your data. You can find out anything about your data, right from your mobile device.

Follow

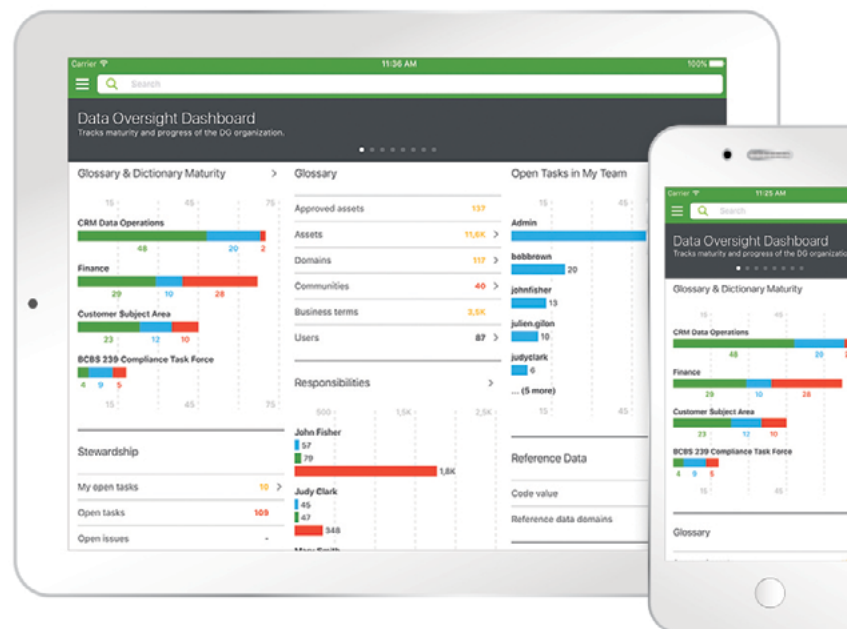

Automatic notifications alert you when there are changes to any of the data you care about. You can manage and approve changes to critical data, and know when the information you rely on has been improved and enhanced.

Understand

Mobile dashboards give you data governance at a glance. You can manage your data quality, track the progress of your data projects, and stay on top of your data governance and stewardship activities all from an easy-to-use mobile interface.

Trust

Collibra On-the-Go ensures that you always know what the data is and what it means. Any issues with data can be surfaced either automatically or by a user from any mobile device. You can track issues, and all the right people can participate in issue resolution. Collibra On-the-Go helps you keep your data complete and trustworthy. It also makes all the information and data governance processes visible to everyone.

Know your data

With Collibra On-the-Go, you can find the definitions, quality, and status of your business terms, critical data elements, and KPIs. Decision makers can know the relationships, policies, and security that your data has, enabling them to move forward with confidence.

Data stewardship

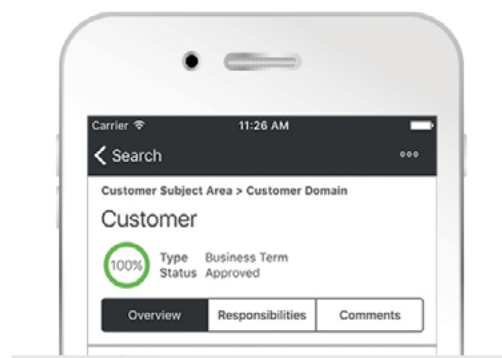

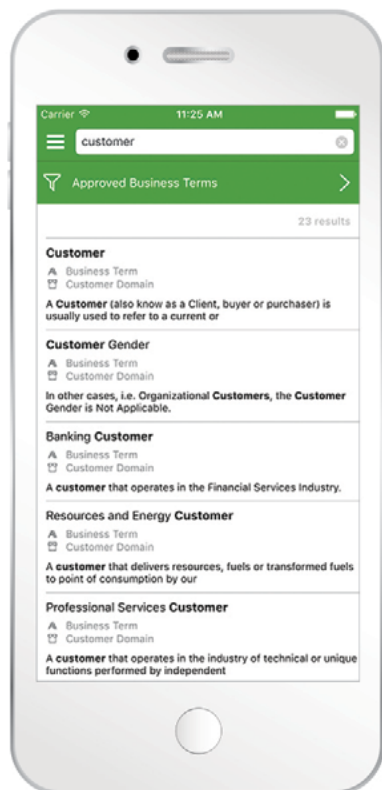

Collibra On-the-Go delivers stewardship tasks right on your mobile device. You can update policy information, approve definition changes, initiate change requests, and determine remediation statuses through convenient mobile technology.

Engage your executives

Make executives, field personnel, and others an active part of the governance process. By providing approvals, voting, and expert input on mobile devices, you make it easy for busy decision makers to participate in the governance process. And increased adoption means a more effective program and a more engaged (and compliant) audience.

Monitor your progress

Collibra On-the-Go enables you to know where you are with your data projects and your overall governance and stewardship effort. You can monitor the quality of the data and understand the status of data management projects and tasks. And, you can focus on continuous improvement, and increase quality, security and compliance.

Access on the go

Collibra On-the-Go lets you easily find, use and update your governance information. You can understand your data, report issues, update semantics or relationships, and execute tasks, all from your mobile device.

Free your users and your data

Your data's definitions, lineage, quality, and policies are all available at a moment's notice. With Collibra On-the-Go, you can answer questions, find the right reports, and identify authoritative data sources. It allows you to make the best use of your data in the office, in a meeting, or on the road.

Data control at your fingertips

Collibra On-the-Go dashboards give mobile executives a clear view of their data, its quality, and management activities. They can initiate changes, update policies, and approve requests from an intuitive mobile interface.

Data stewards have a day job

Collibra On-the-Go lets your data stewards and subject matter experts spend their time doing their day jobs, while being on top of their stewardship tasks and being highly responsive to expert requests. This freedom and flexibility means better stewardship and more value from your data.
